HIGHER: Greenwich and Woolwich MP Nick Raynsford and council leader Chris Roberts turn the first shovels of soil to start work on a luxury hotel on the peninsula

by Dick Townsend-Smith

JUST one year on Royal Greenwich is reaping the legacy benefits from last year's Olympics and Paralympics.

Work started on a new 452-bedroom hotel with conference centre and ballroom on Greenwich Peninsula last week.

It's the latest example of investment into the borough after the 2012 London Games which brought in £28million worth of business to the borough. And follows more shops, supermarkets and businesses opening up or expanding.

More than 5,000 local people got jobs with Games organisers LOCOG or its contractors because Greenwich was a host borough.

And many were then supported into getting long-term work by the royal borough's jobs and training agency GLLaB (Greenwich Local Labour and Business).

The London Games firmly put the borough on the global stage, as iconic images of its historic building and park were beamed around the world. It made Greenwich a

We don't need more fast food

SO Royal Greenwich is now responsible for public health... then how on earth did it pass planning permission for yet another take-away (Pizza Hut) at the Coronet site in Well Hall Road, Eltham? There are already 10 food outlets between Eltham station and Well Hall roundabout so it does not seem as though the council is promoting healthy living at all. Again, where health promotion is concerned, Eltham seems to be the forgotten area of the borough - Men's Health Week was represented across all other areas but we were omitted. I would welcome your comments.

Please return my stolen jewellery

LAST Thursday I was returning from the Greenwich Community College when someone stole a bracelet and three rings from in a small black bag from my shopping bag. None of these items were of immense value but they mean so much to me. The bracelet was a gift from a very dear school friend and I've owned it for the past 55 years. The rings were my mother's, who sadly passed away in 2000, so they're of great sentimental value - they were all broken. I've taken them to my jewellery class so my tutor could help make one bigger, tap out the crooked band of the second and fit a glass stone in the third. If whoever took it would please return it to me, I will pay them the small amount they would get for it if they sold it. Perhaps they could drop it off at the GT office for me to pick up.

Camilla de Bassy, Charlton

● SORRY to hear that a despicable thief stole your jewellery Camilla. If anyone does know the whereabouts of the rings, contact the police, or email contactgreenwichtime@gmail.com or send them to: Greenwich Time, Third Floor, Woolwich Centre, SE18 6HQ and we'll pass them on. Ed

Kids don't go for a quid, do they?

HAVING read your article regarding the opening of the Charlton Lido, whereby it also mentions the Kids for a Quid initiative, I contacted the Lido to clarify this information as I could not find out about it on line. I spoke to Chris at Charlton Lido today, 17.50pm and he informed me that the Kids for a Quid offer, is currently not valid. The lido may introduce this at a later stage in the summer holidays. Your article informs the readers in the present tense. It is incorrect, FYI.

Maria Basziszta, Eltham

● THANKS for highlighting this Maria, you're right, the lido is not doing the Kids for a Quid initiative any more. The pool is opening later in the evening during the summer, not closing until 8pm on weekdays. The lido opens from 9am to 5pm on weekends. For generations to come

Royal borough celebrates legacy of summer 2012

'must see' destination for tourists internationally.

The already-thriving tourism industry - which generates nearly £800m for the local economy, is seeing more hotels built to welcome new visitors. There are already four times as many hotel beds as before. And work on the new 452-bedroom hotel and conference centre on Greenwich Peninsula started last week.

Greenwich's growing international profile has attracted investment from many overseas firms, particularly at the Greenwich Peninsula, London's newest digital enterprise district.

A partnership between the council and Cisco, the network sponsor for London 2012, brought investment from the company and helped accelerate the development of Greenwich Peninsula as a hub for digital enterprise. And a partnership between the borough and several Chinese technology companies is bringing direct investment onto the peninsula.

Three new skills centres in the borough, including the Royal Greenwich Horticultural and Equestrian Skills Centre, are helping young people in particular to gain new skills - and open doors to future careers.

A legacy programme of creating new sports facilities in schools, parks and open spaces is helping to boost fitness among people of all ages. The investment in borough sports facilities includes:

- £6.5 million to enhance community sports facilities at Crown Woods College and Thomas Tallis School
- The £4.8 million Playground to Podium programme to provide new sports facilities in parks and open spaces, including outdoor gyms
- £4m investment in a sports hub in Hornfair Park, providing a redeveloped lido, new tennis facilities and a BMX park.
- And now plans for a multi sports club with all weather facilities for athletics are underway for Sutcliffe Park

Cllr Chris Roberts, leader of the royal borough, said: "We realised right from the start that hosting the world's largest sporting event would deliver a large range of community benefits, ranging from generating job opportunities, boosting our local economy and increasing participation in sport through to the development of new facilities.

"We are now experiencing a surge in our already booming local tourism industry. Our Olympic Legacy will be felt for many generations to come."

University Technical College®
ROYAL BOROUGH OF GREENWICH

Learning Resources Officer (LRO) at the Royal Greenwich UTC.

Salary £23,000 - £26,000 dependent on experience

We see our support team as a fundamental and fully integrated part of ensuring the UTC meets its goals. As a member of our support team you will become part of a dynamic learning community where you are empowered and can give of your best, be supported through challenges, take responsibility for your role and develop yourself as part of both the team, the whole UTC and as an individual. Our teaching support team will underpin the day to day operation of all our learning and teaching activities. The LRO will be responsible for the quality and level of learning resources across the UTC and across all media. This will include books & e-books, learning software, digital media for learning and VLE materials. In addition the LRO will be responsible for developing the capabilities of our students and staff in effective research and learning resource use. Training in our key packages used in the Learning Resources Centre (LRC) will be given.

This role will be pivotal at the UTC in supporting the UTC growth and will report, in the first year, to the Deputy Principal. The role will entail activities including, but not limited to being:

- A partner with teaching staff in the education process
- A partner in supporting individual learning styles
- An acknowledged expert in resource & information provision and management
- A leader and partner with teaching staff in the collaborative design & implementation of information literacy programmes throughout the UTC
- A leader in creating & developing a climate to promote and support reading for pleasure across the school
- An acknowledged partner with all departments to effectively support & resource each key stage
- A partner in out of hours learning
- Looking after & updating electronic resources
- Keeping the LRC organised & tidy
- Maintaining resource catalogues & making them easy to use
- Organising events & activities (such a children's book readings)
- Chasing & collecting resources back & enforcing fines
- Ordering & displaying new stock
- Maintaining a quiet & scholarly environment

The Royal Greenwich UTC has set its goals high and is seeking learning support staff who want to be part of creating and running a dynamic, forward thinking, energetic and passionate education environment in which our students can flourish and where staff are self actualised. To align with this we have set very high expectations of those staff we seek to appoint and we see the development of a strong, happy ambitious and confident team of staff as key to the UTC's success.

We aspire to be an employer of choice for support staff, our HR policies, remuneration scheme, the opportunities for career development and our professional ethos all actively support this goal. We expect that working at the UTC will be a challenging yet rewarding by virtue of the project led curriculum, our stretching aspirations - to be an outstanding school at our first inspection, the environment with its exceptional facilities and our world class information technology. However the UTC will be a small institution in year 1 of operation and our staff structure and staffing numbers will necessarily reflect this for the first year of operation. Inevitably this mean that we may have to blur some roles, focus on the big picture goals for our students and work flexibly in meeting our aspirations. Training on our specialist equipment will be provided where appropriate.

To apply for this role please request an application from:
<http://greenwichutc.com/recruitment/support-staff/>

Please note the application deadline is 9.00am 29th July 2013 you should also include with your completed application any date you are unavailable for assessment within two weeks from the application deadline.

THE RIGHT IMPRESSION: how an artist sees the Crossrail station coming to Abbey Wood in 2017

Action station!

Residents learn about more Crossrail plans for Abbey Wood

LOCAL people got the lowdown on what the new Crossrail station at Abbey Wood will mean for them at a public information event.

They saw artists' impressions on computer screens, viewed maps and questioned Crossrail staff.

Around 8,000 residents from Abbey Wood and Plumstead were invited to the drop-in at Knee Hill community centre. They generally agreed the plans were a big step in the right direction.

Crossrail has submitted its plans for the new Abbey Wood station to both the royal borough and Bexley Council.

If they get the go-ahead, the new station will open in 2017 above two new dedicated Crossrail tracks and those used by North Kent services.

The existing station will be demolished and relocated in the current car park by summer 2014.

The work will be carried out by Network Rail, which is responsible for the existing network.

Neighbours Malcolm Knight and Roger Simpson have both lived in Copfield Drive for more than 25 years. Roger said: "It's a pity they didn't go ahead with this 30 years ago. It's vital for the regeneration of the Thames Estuary."

SCREEN GEM: locals get a good look online of the planned Crossrail station

Malcolm told GT: "Loss of parking might mean more people will park on the streets, and our road gets blocked enough already - sometimes even the dustcart can't get through."

Rosemary Warner, who lives off McLeod Road, said: "I've seen a lot of changes since I came here 48 years ago, and this will be good for people going into London." The design includes a spacious concourse leading directly onto a wide forecourt connecting the station Harrow Manorway.

There will be two new "island" platforms for Crossrail and north Kent services, plus six lifts to help passengers get around the station.

From 2018 there will be a train every five minutes during peak hours allowing residents to travel right through the capital without having to change trains.

All change!

New bus routes agreed for Kidbrooke development

by Dick Townsend-Smith

IT'S 'all change' on the buses so that new facilities can be built for the new Kidbrooke Village hub.

The 178 and B16 services are being re-routed from this Saturday (July 27). Route 178 will now run direct along Kidbrooke Park Road and will not serve Tudway Road, Moorehead Way or Weigall Road.

Route B16 will serve Kidbrooke Park Road, the eastern part of Weigall Road and the west part of Moorehead Way. It will no longer serve Tudway Road or the northern part of Moorehead Way.

The buses used to wind right around the estate but need to be rerouted to progress development of the 'village centre' which includes almost a thousand homes and a hub of shops, leisure and health facilities with a new rail station.

Residents who were consulted by Transport for London (TfL) last year were not happy with the original route changes proposed. They were backed by the council which worked with TfL to agree a solution.

Last week a letter from TfL explaining the changes went out to local people. It says that route 178 will serve Kidbrooke Park Road as originally proposed. There will be three new stops:

- Northbound – opposite the junction with Cambert Way
- Northbound – north of the junction with Weigall Road and
- Southbound – north of the junction with Weigall Road.

The new bus stops will include stops that allow a change of buses from the B16 to the 178.

Residents on the Casterbridge and Brooklands Park estates had raised concerns about walking distances to Kidbrooke Park Road, for the B16.

After further consultation and discussion the council and Berkeley Homes agreed to fund a turning circle on Moorehead Way close to Wingfield School. It means the B16 will now be able to enter Weigall Road from Kidbrooke Park Road and then run along Moorehead Way as far as the turning circle, returning to Kidbrooke Park Road via Moorehead Way and Weigall Road.

New walking and cycling routes have also been opened to help local residents get across the Kidbrooke Village development, including to and from

Kidbrooke Park Road.

Cllr Denise Hyland, the royal borough's cabinet member with responsibility for transport said: "Re-routing the buses is necessary to fit in with the new road layout for Kidbrooke Village. We negotiated with TfL so that we could get the very best outcome for residents at Kidbrooke and the new routes are the result of everyone coming to agreement by working in partnership."

Hot tips for staying cool in the heatwave

HEALTH chiefs have issued a set of tips on how to cope with the scorching weather.

As we went to press, the Met Office issued a Level 3 alert – meaning there is a 90 per cent chance of a heatwave and that people should take steps to protect themselves and their families against the effects of strong sun and high temperatures.

While everyone is at risk from dehydration, heat exhaustion and heat stroke, some groups are more at risk. They are the elderly, infants and young children, people with chronic medical conditions such as heart and breathing difficulties, and those with mobility problems.

Hints and tips on how to keep safe and cool are posted on the Royal Greenwich website at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk. They include staying in the shade particularly between 11am and 3pm, wearing a sunscreen, a hat and loose cotton clothes, and avoiding too much exercise.

Cool down by having plenty of cold drinks and avoid too much alcohol, eat lots of cold foods such as salad and fruit, and take cool showers and baths.

COTTON-EYE JOS: friends dressed in their finest barn gear rip up the dance floor at the Waterfront's 25th anniversary party

Back to 'Front!

Manager Sam plays it again at historic Woolwich leisure centre

by Peter Cordwell

ONE person enjoying the Waterfront Leisure Centre's 25th anniversary as much as anyone else is general manager Sam Wright, who started work there as an 18-year-old lifeguard on the day it opened.

"It's full circle and very special for me," said Sam. "I returned to the Waterfront in February and could not be happier. I'm a Woolwich boy – I went to Woolwich Poly school – and I love it here."

Sam, who was 44 on July 12, joined an Over 55s barn dance at the leisure centre in Woolwich, which is run by GLL on behalf of the royal borough, on July 11 as part of its quarter-century celebrations.

"A couple of the people there were also at the centre 25 years ago so it was a very special day for lots of us," said Sam, who started at the centre in 1988 when it was run by the London Borough of Greenwich. "We've had an Aerobathon and a Back to the '80s event where people could swim for £1. We've also got a host of sporting events, including squash and badminton tournaments, up to the end of the month."

Sam started as a Waterfront lifeguard on July 11, 1988 – "a date ingrained in my memory" – and has since worked at The Arches, a GLL leisure centre in Leytonstone and then the opening of the leisure centre at Coldharbour in Eltham.

"I met my wife, Sarah, at a GLL Christmas party and worked in Bellingham before going back to The Arches in 2008, and now I'm back at the Waterfront after a project on Hackney Marshes. I've really been round the houses!

"I love this place. It's a dream move for me. I know lots of local people. It's a big centre and it's buzzing."

Plumstead entrepreneur gets Dragon's seal of approval after going into beauty business

Oil be okay

by Dick Townsend-Smith

A 22-year-old former Thomas Tallis student has gone into the oil business.

But it's not the likes of JR Ewing from Dallas that Emma Agese is competing with.

Instead, Emma, from Plumstead Common, is producing and selling her own range of natural cosmetics – and has the backing of former Dragons' Den entrepreneur Richard Farleigh.

The South Bank University graduate set up her own business, called Agese Oils, after spending time researching natural ingredients for cosmetics. She then journeyed to India to talk to women who used them for their beauty regimes. Back home, she manufactured some sample products and quickly sold them to family and friends.

She told GT: "It took me three years to get them into production, and I now have three oils for face, body and hair. They cost from £25 to £39 and are for sale via our website at www.ageseoils.co.uk

"They are 100 per cent natural, and most of the active ingredients are from India. I use local suppliers and have them shipped over to where we manufacture at a unit in Rathmore Road, Charlton."

She added: "The business is going really well, and I have one full time and one part-time staff. We are now starting to approach retailers to stock our products and we are hoping to expand into beauty shops and department stores.

"We held a successful launch event, where the special guest was Richard Farleigh who helped kick-start the business with an award."

NOW WE'RE IN BUSINESS: Emma (centre) at the Agese Oil launch party. Left, with former Dragons' Den panellist Richard Farleigh

It was fete: Plumstead fun day raises £1k

THE summer fete hadn't been seen for five years at Rockliffe Manor primary school, but it was back with a bang earlier this month, and generous revellers helped raise more than £1,000 in the process.

The school on Bassant Road in Plumstead held a packed day of activities including henna and nail art, a raffle, arts and crafts, face painting and an auction was held for a day get-away for eight people in the Isle of Sheppey, donated by a parent.

Charity Demelza House also attended the event and its stall raised £129 for the cause. Year 4 teacher Emma Turner said: "It was a huge triumph. As a result of the support, we were able to raise £1008 which will go towards improving the playground equipment. School council members and pupils of the school will help decide how the money is spent."

ROYAL BOROUGH OF

MAKING LEISURE CENTRES BETTER FOR 20 YEARS...

In 1993, Greenwich Council needed to find a new way to run its leisure centres. Together, the staff and Council came up with a ground breaking new model, and Greenwich Leisure Limited (GLL), the first of the new breed of leisure trusts in the UK, was born.

Unlike many private companies, GLL is a staff led charitable social enterprise, dedicated to making leisure centres and libraries better for everyone. We're an ethical business that trades with a social purpose and our staff invest time, energy and effort (along with any financial surplus generated), into helping make life better for Greenwich residents through the services we offer.

In July this year, we're 20 years old and are as excited about the future today, as we were back in 1993. We've recently moved beyond leisure centres too. We also run the borough's libraries, adventure playgrounds, and Southmere boating centre. And what's more, we've also begun to lovingly restore the Royal Greenwich Lido in Charlton's Hornfair Park. The first phase is now open, with a 50m Olympic sized heated outdoor pool and later this autumn, we'll be adding a state-of-the-art gym, studio and much more.

We'll also be operating the Copper Box Arena and Aquatic Centre on the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park following the successful London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. So, for all our customers and supporters in Greenwich, there are exciting times ahead.

Under our Better brand, we now operate leisure centres across London and beyond. But whatever we do, we'll always remain true to our social enterprise, co-operative and charitable roots as one of the Royal Borough of Greenwich's most dynamic and successful companies. To everyone that's played a part in our journey to date, thank you. We look forward to the next 20 years...

Restaurateur awaits sentencing after conviction for 14 offences

A MAN who tried to turn his Woolwich restaurant into a virtual nightclub has been convicted of seven offences under the Licensing Act and seven more for breaching food hygiene regulations.

Ademola Dairo from Thamesmead had denied all 14 charges involving his Marbles restaurant in Anglesea Road, but was found guilty on all charges by Bromley magistrates. He is due back at court on Monday (July 29) for sentencing. The court heard police and licensing officers had paid several visits to the restaurant following claims that Dairo was opening beyond permitted hours and was selling alcohol without a licence. They found a large amount of drink and menus for alcoholic drinks in a basement bar. On another visit, they found a singer performing in the basement, again without a licence. Health inspectors also found the premises were not kept clean, there was no hot running water soap or hand drying facilities to the hand basin, and there was a mouse infestation with gnawed food packages and droppings throughout the premises. Both the police and the royal borough had sent Dairo numerous warnings reminding him that he was not licensed to sell alcohol or provide regulated entertainment, but he ignored them. Dairo also continued to run the restaurant despite a court order prohibiting him from doing so following the visit by health inspectors. Soon after the allegations were made Dairo closed down his restaurant. ● The court heard he had also been cautioned in 2008 for unauthorised activities needing a licence while the premises had been shut on two previous occasions by health inspectors and he was prosecuted in 2011 for six food hygiene offences.

School's culture day boosts playground fund

CHILDREN from Bannockburn Primary in Plumstead High Street got a taste of global culture last Monday (July 16) when the school held a 'world fair' in the playground.

Parents, staff and governors served home-cooked food from a dozen different countries around the world, and joined the children in wearing national dress. There were also stalls displaying costume and musical instruments, and offering face-painting, origami and boomerang decorating.

Children really enjoyed the event. Anita Ikotun, eight, from Year 4 said: "It was really fun." Maneet Jutla, ten, from Year 5 said "It's teaching you all about the different cultures and the food that people live on." And Tyrone Jno-Baptise, 11, from Year 6 said: "It's giving people from different cultures a chance to listen to their own music."

It was the first time Bannockburn had staged a world fair.

More than 250

visitors went along, and helped swell the school's fund to kit out its new playground at its new Manor Way site.

A £30,000 target has been set to provide a games and sports area, trim trails and climbing equipment, and outdoor musical instruments.

White water, white knuckles!

NOTHING TO IT!: St Ursula's girls have a lot to say on the way down the white water course at Lee Valley

ST Ursula's Convent's reward for the excellence of their school sport and physical education was a white knuckle, white water rafting at the Lee Valley White Water Centre.

The Greenwich school represented the borough in the schools festival event at the London 2012 venue organised by Lee Valley Regional Park Authority earlier this month.

"It was a fantastic day for the girls," said PE teacher Dannii Nash, who was also involved in paddling their own canoe. "We met the Olympic gold medallists Etienne Stott and Tim Baillie, who returned to the scene of their triumph."

"Eight Year 9 girls took part and were able to take part in other sports during the day, but the white water rafting was what we all went for really."

Tim Baillie said: "The memories of the London 2012 Games will never leave us and it's great to see so many young people coming to Lee Valley White Water Centre and taking to the same water where we achieved our win."

FUN AS WELL AS INSPIRATIONAL: GB athlete Jeanette Kwakye gets her class in the right mood at 'Be Like An Athlete Day' at The John Roan secondary school

Motive to thrill!

The John Roan students inspired by 'Be An Athlete Day'

by Peter Cordwell

FOUR sporting role models left a well of inspiration among Year 9 students after 'Be Like An Athlete Day' at The John Roan secondary school in Greenwich on Wednesday, July 10.

The 14 and 15-year-olds attended inspirational workshops by local Paralympian Andy Barrow, GB sprinter Jeanette Kwakye, sports broadcaster Samantha Johnson and former professional footballer Kevin George.

They focussed on the qualities and attitudes needed to succeed in the world of sport and linked them to the hard work and commitment the students need at school, especially for exams in Year 10.

The students also made the most of healthy lifestyle lessons taken by Greenwich Get Active and multi-skills coaching from Charlton Athletic Community Trust.

"It was a great day that clearly had a positive effect on the students," PE teacher Natalie Mann told GT. "The aim was to inspire and motivate the students to help them achieve their goals in the future, especially to understand there is a lot of hard work involved.

"Andy, Jeanette, Samantha and Kevin did not have it easy. They had lots of ups and downs in their lives but eventually got to there they wanted to get."

There were six 30-minute lessons with about 30 students in each class. Yael Sherr, aged 14, said: "It's been really fun and I've learned so many things.

"Perhaps the best thing was that you don't have to be so disappointed if one aspect of your life doesn't work out. For example, if you don't make it as a footballer you can still do something else, like coaching or into the business side of things.

"It was a great help to me. I realised I could be more open-minded about things. Before I thought that I would probably have just one choice in life but this taught me that there's always the chance to do other things. Two or three years ago I wanted to be an athlete myself but it hasn't really worked out. Now I'm thinking about doing charity work in developing countries or maybe a nurse."

Yael, who lives in Charlton and now does other sports including wall climbing in Woolwich, was particularly impressed by Andy Barrow's workshop. "He had a terrible injury but he said how it had opened up things for him and he went to compete for Team GB in the Paralympics," said Yael. "That showed me how you can turn your life around."

What Emily Cole, also 14, found interesting was how the four guests got to where they are now.

"It was pretty inspiring because they showed that success is never that easy," she said. "I thought that sport was just, like, a physical thing but they showed there are lots of other things as well."

"Samantha Johnson made me think a lot about what I'd actually like to do now. Her job as a sports broadcaster certainly appeals to me. I do lots of sport, I play football for Long Lane, centre back, and would like to do well at it. But the media thing looks really special.

"What I learned is that you've got to work hard and see where it takes you. Miss Mann is a great teacher and encourages us a lot to keep going whatever the obstacles."

Jakaterina Sinakova's terrific Rollapaluza triumph

YEAR 7 student Jakaterina Sinakova got on her bike to win the Sustrans School Rollapaluza League final.

Twelve-year-old Jakaterina, finished top among students from all over London in the sport where bikes are fixed to custom-built rollers. She covered the 250-metre set distance in 14.05s. As well as winning a mountain bike, Jakaterina got to meet Olympic and world gold medal winning track cyclist

Steven Burke. "It was hard work but worth it in the end as it's an amazing feeling to be a winner. My new bike and I will become new best friends!" said the Corelli The college's head of PE Jim Roques added: "If this is what someone new to cycling can achieve now, imagine what she will be able to achieve in the future! If cycling is a path Jakaterina or any other student wants to explore, we'll provide all the support they need."

AN amazing and ongoing legacy from the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games is there and upgraded facilities all across the borough, from the £4.8 million Playground to Podium fitness and open spaces to the £4 million multi-sports hub in Hornfair Park, Charlton, and the increased sports from powerchair football to archery. But our memories of London 2012 is an important legacy. A chance to share your snaps and thoughts with us to go in an exhibition at the Woolwich Centre

Make it snap

Add YOUR pics and memories to the great London 2012 photog

MEMORIES are most certainly made of this, the pictures taken during London 2012, the unforgettable Olympic and Paralympic Games with Greenwich one of the proud six host boroughs.

The breathtaking action pictures here - including the equestrian shot that defined the Games for many locals - were taken by Woolwich super snapper Mike King, and used in Wiley's official commemorative book of the Games.

Now the council is asking local residents to submit their photographic memories of the Games for consideration for an exhibition that is due to open at the Woolwich Centre library in Wellington Street on Friday, July 26, exactly a year after the London Olympics' opening ceremony. The exhibition will feature in an area close to the main library entrance until September.

Email your snaps from last year to contactgreenwichtime@gmail.com with 100 words on why London 2012 was so special for you and your family.

For 50-year-old Mike it was work but also a passion that has taken him to six summer Olympics, starting in Los Angeles in 1984.

"I've been a photographer since I left school after my A-levels," Mike told GT. "Sport was my passion and photography made it a perfect match. I've lived in Woolwich for seven years and love the borough."

"I wouldn't have missed the Olympics for anything, especially as they were in

by Peter Cordwell

my home borough. I like the athletics best because there is so much variety and great angles for a photographer."

One magical angle is the equestrian picture featured here that brings a surge of pride to every resident.

"I've always got a camera with me now - my main one is a Nikon D4 - and over the last couple of years I've done lots of pictures of Greenwich and Woolwich. I could probably fill your Picspot for 10 years! I love the green space and some of the architecture is wonderful. It's just a lovely place to be. I've been all around the world but, as far as Britain is concerned, I think this borough is the top place."

Mike is anything but a self-publicist but some probing about his best-ever picture produced incredible news that TWO of his photographs were once included in The Observer magazine's top 50 sports pics of all time - a classic shot of Jurgen Klinsmann "diving" and an arty of one of some rowers in competition.

"I think the 2012 photo exhibition is a really good idea. We've all got very short memories so it'll be great to capture a wonderful time in this way. There was some negativity before the Games but I knew it would turn out to be fantastic, which it was."

Mike's marvellous contributions will be rotated on screen during the exhibition and yours could be alongside.

So send them in to contactgreenwichtime@gmail.com

A night of ales 'n' tales

I SKIPPED past the buzzing crowds revelling in the last hours of sunshine beside the river and stepped into the Lord Hood in Greenwich for the weekly folk night.

I could hear scraping strings as they were tuned for the Tuesday night entertainment. At first there were but a few musicians there, but gradually as the hours swung by and the beers sunk the mood lifted, until 14 expert players from both sides of the river congregated to play quite a magnificent blend of uplifting, merry and traditional English folk music.

Once a week, this collection of classic musicians and their unique, somewhat obscure instruments, come to life playing an assortment of traditional English folk tunes.

As someone who's not used to hearing music much older than my age, I can say with all honesty this was a quite the musical epiphany for me. When you hear these instruments played so perfectly together you realise the remarkable foundations of modern music and how important our musical heritage is.

Alec Gorham, 60, plays the melodeon, which bears a resemblance to an accordion. He told me: "Folk music was the pop music of the time. People would read the newspapers and put it into a song- 'who got hanged at Tyburn today?' for example.

"Folk music covers all aspects of life. You've got your sea shanties - or sea songs - which were stories about the sea. Often people would play songs about Mr. Nelson and Admiral Benbow and the likes. Tunes like the ones we can hear in the background often attract words to be written to them. Hence you get ones like waltzing Matilda, as an example. That's an English tune that's carried all the way to Australia, and someone wrote a song to it, which is quite famous now."

It was with a touch of sadness that I left the pub and stepped back out onto the busy main road, where cars were driving up and down, bringing my senses crashing back to the 21st century. I can wholly recommend the folk music experience which takes place every Tuesday night at the Lord Hood. 8/10

Show that's out of this world

THE big question that Stella at Greenwich Theatre raised, was: if we have forgotten essential pioneers of our past, how many other things have we forgotten?

Its small cast of two women and one man told a story that placed women in science - in particular astronomy - under the spotlight, and made the persuasive point that too many influential scientists have been written out of history over the centuries.

Actor-director Chris Barnes found a way to make the audience members feel part of something very intimate, despite the dark, bare and high stage suggesting an infinite openness towards the sky. It was just a shame that the players did not use the theatre's space enough.

The three actors alternated between the 18th century relationship between astronomer Caroline Herschel and her brother William, and the 21st century, where scientist Jessica Bell was fighting to save her family and her work.

There was a deep connection between the two women, the first fighting to be heard by her brother, and the second yearning to keep her family together while travelling to pursue her research. Stella pushed the audience to question their capacity of understanding what really is "up there". 7/10

THE Royal Greenwich Festivals continue with the Greenwich Music Festival. The music festival takes place on weekends at venues across the borough, at open spaces, historic venues and in shops and businesses.

The programme began at Eltham's Passey Place on July 13.

It continues on from 11am to 2pm on July 27 at the SE9 town centre venue, with a performance of classical and popular music.

On August 3, there is folk music, before an extravaganza of summer soul on August 24.

At Cutty Sark Gardens, in Greenwich town centre, on July 27 there is an explosion of world music, with a performance from Kalakuta, a Nigerian jazz band, as well as R'n'B from Diamond Links. On August 3 there is a performance of street music.

August 24 heralds in another dose of summer-lovin' soul grooves. All performances run from midday to 3pm.

Hundreds flocked to Woolwich last week to see a live screening of Puccini's Tosca on the big screen. And there are more musical happenings on July 27 when world music descends on the Woolwich square, with a performance from Mosi Conde on the kora, an African harp and singer-songwriter, Dawson. Local bands ply their trade on August 3, and summer soul makes a return on August 24. All music takes place between midday and 3pm.

It all runs alongside an ongoing programme of free family activities and entertainment, including films on the big screen and workshops.

The Royal Greenwich Music Festival will also feature special events and concerts through the coming year. All events free. Watch this space for more details.

A cultural occasion

MORE than 2,000 people attended the Greenwich World Cultural Festival at Eltham Palace on July 14.

The festival was part of the Royal Greenwich Festivals and was organised by Greenwich Dance and Greenwich Theatre.

Attractions included a Japanese band – Taiko, steel pans, jazz and African drummers.

Greenwich Theatre's director, James Haddrell told Scene: "The event also celebrated the amazing range of culture, diversity and equality in Greenwich with a free day, which thousands of people could come to."

Events at the festival also included a dance workshop, theatre performances and Zamba bands. Greenwich Dance's interim executive director, Amanda Davey said: "The main aim of the event was to provide free access to local communities and the local people in south-east London, to high quality dance, theatre and music."

The event has become a fixture at the English heritage site. James said: "This is the fifth year we've held this event and every year there is something new. This year we had the most visitors and most exciting range of performance – all the way from Charleston dancers to African drummers."

Amanda added "The event promotes equality by the diversity of acts and people performing, but also attending as guest" Jaudat Alogba

FASHIONISTAS can get hot under the collar by designing and creating their own dream outfit, at a DIY fashion workshop this August at Discover Greenwich. The Trash Stitch Workshop is run by a group of designers who trained at the London College of Fashion and worked with professionals in the industry. The popularity of recent programmes like BBC's Great British Sewing Bee highlights the growth of people wanting to create their own clothes.

It's open to 13 to 20-year-olds, and participants will learn how to customise and create with stitching, fabric effect, patchwork, embellishing and other designing techniques.

Clore Learning Centre at Discover Greenwich on Wednesday August 7 at 10am-3.30pm. The event is FREE. Booking is essential, email boxoffice@ornc.org or call 020 8269 4799.

2012 sports anniversary

RESIDENTS can take part in free sports activities to celebrate a year after London 2012.

Join in on Saturday, July 27, from 10am to 5pm in General Gordon Square, Woolwich. Activities include soft archery with sticky pad arrows, handball, Boccia, a form of freestyle aerobics, and a sports wheelchair course.

The GLL Fitness marquee will also feature cycles and rowing. The event is the latest in a series free family summer events designed to attract people to the town centre.

Ofsted upgrade for adult learning

EDUCATION inspectors from Ofsted have praised the standard of adult and community learning classes provided by the royal borough.

They say there have been big improvements since their last inspection in 2009. As a result, they have upgraded their previous rating from 'satisfactory' to 'good'.

The council receives £1.9 million a year from the government's Skills Funding Agency for Community Learning to help 5,000 learners a year take up courses. Ofsted's four-day inspection in May looked at the quality of teaching and learning and the effectiveness of leadership and management. All were judged 'good'.

Cllr Denise Hyland, the royal borough's cabinet member regeneration, economy and skills, said: "This is an excellent outcome for an important service which the council has transformed over the last three years into a modern high-quality community learning offer, which reflects the needs of the local area and helps residents gain skills, improve their confidence and progress into employment or further learning."

Ofsted said the council had "a strong strategic vision for adult learning and skills to meet the needs of its local communities. Ambitious and innovative partnerships with the private sector and outstanding providers, such as Hadlow College, have led to the development of its Skills Centres to address the vocational course needs of learners better."

The inspectors said learners now had access to a range of courses are designed to improve employability and provide routes to improved skills and qualifications. Half the learners came from 'deprived areas, success rates were high, more than three-quarters achieved the results they wanted, and more than a third went on to further skills training or employment. The council's cabinet is due to agree Ofsted's recommendations for making more improvements tomorrow (Wednesday, July 24).

University Technical College®
ROYAL BOROUGH OF GREENWICH

Facilities Managers role at the Royal Greenwich UTC

Salary £29,000 - £33,000 dependent on experience

We see our support team as a fundamental and fully integrated part of ensuring the UTC meets its goals. As a member of our support team you will become part of a dynamic learning community where you are empowered and can give of your best, be supported through challenges, take responsibility for your role and develop yourself as part of both the team, the whole UTC and as an individual. Please note that these two roles will be shared with the adjacent school, Windrush Primary, we are seeking to appoint two FM Staff who can support both the UTC and Windrush Primary School.

This role will be pivotal at the UTC in supporting the UTC growth and will report, in the first year, to the Principal. The role will entail activities including, but not limited to:

- Procurement and contract management
- Building and grounds maintenance
- Cleaning
- Catering and vending
- Health and safety
- Security
- Utilities and communications infrastructure
- Space management

The Royal Greenwich UTC has set its goals high and is seeking Facilities management staff who want to be part of creating and running a dynamic, forward thinking, energetic and passionate education environment in which our students can flourish and where staff are self actualised. To align with this we have set very high expectations of those staff we seek to appoint and we see the development of a strong, happy ambitious and confident team of staff as key to the UTC's success.

We aspire to be an employer of choice for support staff, our HR policies, remuneration scheme, the opportunities for career development and our professional ethos all actively support this goal. We expect that working at the UTC will be a challenging yet rewarding by virtue of the project led curriculum, our stretching aspirations - to be an outstanding school at our first inspection, the environment with its exceptional facilities and our world class information technology. However the UTC will be a small institution in year 1 of operation and our staff structure and staffing numbers will necessarily reflect this for the first year of operation. Inevitably this mean that we may have to blur some roles, focus on the big picture goals for our students and work flexibly in meeting our aspirations. Training on our specialist equipment will be provided where appropriate.

To apply for this role please request an application from:
<http://greenwichutc.com/recruitment/support-staff/>

Please note the application deadline is 9.00am 29th July 2013 you should also include with your completed application any date you are unavailable for assessment within two weeks from the application deadline.

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 349

How the lettings policy works

Housing applicants are placed within 'Bands' according to the Royal Borough of Greenwich's policy for letting homes. Your band information is on the letter that the Council sent you when you registered, or when your circumstances changed. Property adverts say which band can apply and any other criteria. When all the bids are received, the property is then offered to: For properties advertised for band A and band B - the applicant who has had this priority status for the longest time. For properties advertised for band C applicants - the applicant who has been registered on the Council's list for the longest time.

BAND

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the Royal Borough of Greenwich must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, register an application on line at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk

Find your applicant number

It will be on the letter you've already had from the Royal Borough of Greenwich about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

Pick out your ideal property

by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free at either The Eltham or Woolwich Centre or a local library.

Apply in one of two ways

- Phone the 24-hour hotline 020 8921 4340. It's an automatic push-button system and calls will be charged at the normal local rate, or
- Via the Royal Borough of Greenwich's website www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

The next edition of GreenwichHomes will be available on Wednesday 31 July 2013 at midday and will include any Housing Association properties when available. Closing date for all applications for this issue is midnight on Sunday 28 July 2013.

would be amazing. We are keen to arrange a tour one way or the other as soon as possible."

According to the book 'Hockey', written in 1899, The Blackheath Hockey and Football (Rugby) Club was formed in 1861 and probably played its first matches on the heath. The club, which went its own way three years later, was formed by old boys of Blackheath Proprietary School, and the school bell is still used to summon members at the annual dinner.

"It's all very different now, of course," said Yanoulla, who has been a club member for 17 years after joining as a 13-year-old. "The club is thriving with six men's Saturdays teams, three ladies and three junior sides. Our membership is approaching 300, with 75 honorary members. The ladies finished third in the summer league and it's a very friendly and welcoming club and we're always ready to welcome new people at whatever standard."

Last year the club made a bold and exciting move when it joined with Eltham College to be renamed Blackheath & Old Elthamians Hockey Club, playing at Lee and in Kidbrooke Grove, Blackheath.

"Being an Olympic sport gave hockey a tremendous boost," said Yanoulla, who is training to be a junior coach. "It's a very skilful game and some players are known to cover about 10 kilometres every game, so it's great for fitness too, as well as being great fun."

Chile relationship

Our oldest club links up with South America

by Peter Cordwell

THE oldest hockey club in the world is forging links with one of the youngest...based in Chile.

An extraordinary relationship is taking shape between Blackheath and Old Elthamians Hockey Club and the team in Temuco that is actually called Blackheath and Old Elthamians Chile Hockey Club!

"A lady called Camila Salinas contacted us through our website after finding out we are officially the oldest club in the world," first team captain Yanoulla Kakoulli told GT. "We were very moved and proud to be associated with a club so far away."

"Now we are nurturing the relationship online and by sending memorabilia but we really want to meet the team in person, either here or even through a trip to Chile, which
